

MAYOR MURPHY THANKS PORT ARTHUR FOLK FOR CO-OPERATION IN STREET CARNIVAL

Discussing the parade of last night, Mayor Murphy said that he desired to express his thanks to the people of Port Arthur for their co-operation in last night's fun, which assisted in making this the most striking procession that has ever been pulled off in the city of Fort William. While his gratitude is extended to every one, including all the people who came over merely as spectators, he feels that mention is specially due to the dry dock aggregation, the pulp mills and the city employes, as well as to the Port Arthur rotarians who joined so heartily with their Fort William fellows. The dry dock elephant was among the chief attractions for the kiddies, and his frantic efforts to get into the ice cream parlors on the route and his inability to do so, though he flapped his ears, winked his eyes, and waved his trunk, caused as much fun as anything through the evening. The mayor wished also to compliment the boy scouts and their leader upon their excellent appearance and their efficient drill.
